A CALENDAR
OF
Deeds enrolled within the County of Norfolk.

COMMUNICATED BY

J. C. TINGEY, M.A., F.S.A.

OF all the thousands of records in which the history of England lies hidden, I think it may be said, without fear of challenge, those remaining with the Clerks of the Peace for the different counties are the least known, not merely to the general public, but even to those who have charge of them. Nor is this surprising when we consider the little care that their predecessors have taken to keep the rolls arranged until the task of arranging them became too great to be lightly undertaken.

At the end of the last century the Government appointed a Select Committee to enquire into the state of the public records throughout the kingdom, which Committee did not neglect the county records. They requested the several Clerks of the Peace to report to them on the nature of their contents and other matters. The replies of the Clerks may be seen in the Report of the Committee, issued in 1800; but one does not gather much from the returns, the custodians, as a rule, knowing but little of what was under their care.

William Stokes, Clerk of the Peace for Norfolk, pleads, as an excuse for his lack of knowledge, that he has been but recently appointed; but he managed to make the Committee understand that there were no documents relating to the county of an earlier date than 1700. The late Clerk had been in the habit of keeping part of the records at his private dwelling-house, and Mr. Stokes is anxious that a commodious room should be provided for them within or adjoining Norwich Castle. Whether a room was found for them then and there, I cannot tell; but archæologists will, I am sure, be thankful to the late Mr. William Stokes for his desire for the better preservation of the records. Indeed, he went further, and suggested that a general catalogue and indexes should be made of every description of the public documents of the county. If only wishes were actions what more could be desired? From an archæological point of view, Mr. Stokes was the right man in the right place.

No doubt the action of the Government Committee opened the eyes of many Clerks of the Peace to the national value of their records, and it is reasonable to suppose that better care was bestowed on them in consequence.

I am not aware, however, that anything practical was done with our Norfolk records for many years. In 1823 the Shirehall was opened, since which date they have been preserved there, and deposited in the lockers at the top of the strong room, where they remained until quite recently.

Some few years ago the Norfolk County Council came into possession of the records, and, as already reported to this Society,¹ Mr. Hudson and Mr. Tallack arranged them at the request of the President of the Society, who is also Chairman of the Record Committee. They found amongst them several files of Enrolments of

Conveyances, commencing in 1560, and arrangements were being made with Mr. Tallack to calendar them, when his untimely death put an end to the expectations of the Society in this and other matters.

These enrolments were made in accordance with an Act of Parliament of 27 Hen. VIII., which was a supplement to the Statute of Uses, passed in the same session. By 27 Hen. VIII., cap. 16, it was enacted "that from the last day of July, 1536, no manors, lands, or tenements shall pass from one to another by reason of any bargain and sale thereof, except the same bargain and sale be made by writing indented, inrolled in one of the King's Courts of Record at Westminster, or else within the county where the lands lie, before the Custos Rotulorum and two Justices of the Peace, and the Clerk of the Peace of the same county, or two of them at the least, whereof the Clerk of the Peace to be one; the inrollment to be made within six months after the date of the writing in parchment, to the intent that every party that hath to do therewith, may resort and see the effect and tenor of every such writing so inrolled." This Act was unpopular from the first, because it gave publicity to the doings of great families.

Sims, in his Manual, doubts whether there are any records with the majority of the Clerks of the Peace of more ancient date than the commencement of the eighteenth century, but states that the county records of Middlesex, which are the earliest in existence, commence in 1547. Mr. John Cordy Jeaffreson has informed me that Middlesex possesses no enrolments of deeds.

Since Sims wrote, the old documents relating to the county of Essex were accidentally discovered in the Shirehall, at Chelmsford, and among them were forty-one membranes of enrolments of conveyances, from 23 Hen. VIII. to 21 James I., numbering ninety-one conveyances in all, which have all been calendared and published by the Historical Manuscripts Commission, 10th Report, Appendix, part iv. The same Commission, in its 7th Report, makes mention of the Somersetshire Records, among which there are said to be thirty similar rolls, extending over a period from 28 Hen. VIII. to 1731. The North Riding of Yorkshire has a series from the 30 Hen. VIII. to 5 William and Mary, of which there is a calendar in the Ninth Report, Appendix, part i.;¹ it also possesses a Record Society, which, I believe, is making a calendar of all its records. The West Riding has no enrolments of conveyances. Probably several other counties have some, which will be accessible to the public in course of time.

To return to our Norfolk records. In the spring of 1895, when the Norwich Municipal Records were being arranged in the admirable Muniment Room provided for them in the Castle Museum, a question arose whether the County Records might not also be deposited there. It appeared, however, that there were technical objections to this course, owing to the Castle being now outside the jurisdiction of the Custos Rotulorum of the county. A press, similar to those in the City Muniment Room, was therefore provided in the Shirehall, and it was decided that before the records were deposited there, they should (in addition to the classification made in 1891) be thoroughly cleaned, a lengthy and laborious process. Mr. Hudson, who was asked to superintend this work, requested me to undertake it in his stead. At the same time, at the request of the Committee of the Archæological Society, and with the consent of the Joint Committee of the County Council, I undertook to make a calendar of the above-mentioned enrolments.

The original arrangement of the rolls, I believe, was in periods corresponding with the official lives of the Clerks of the Peace, and there were until they passed through my hands some ten files of rolls. But owing to their inconvenient size some of them have been now divided into two parts; for instance, one consisted of 177 narrow rolls, and when placed one upon another they made a pile which was higher than it was broad, a most inconvenient form. Another of thirty-nine rolls I found with three taken from the commencement, and three from the end to make two other small files; these are now arranged consecutively. There are now eleven files of from one roll in the smallest to ninety-three in the largest.

The rolls are in excellent condition, there being only one or two which I had any difficulty in deciphering. I must make exception of the latest file, which consists of enrolments during the first half of the eighteenth century; this file appears to have been eaten by mice. I do not see any trace of damp, but every roll is destroyed in the same degree. However, the greater part is left, and there is so much repetition, that what is missing can be pretty well supplied from what remains, so that the loss is by no means irreparable; beyond that the file has an untidy look, little harm has been done.

As to the completeness of the series, I can only say definitely that it is not perfect, but how imperfect it is very difficult to judge. Readers can form their own opinion from what I have to say on each separate file. I have conclusive evidence that five rolls or membranes are missing, but that is probably below the full number, yet I should not be surprised if that number were less than ten, though, on the other hand, it might exceed twenty. This refers to the existing files or bundles. There may, of course, be others now lost which preceded or followed them. There are preserved 455 rolls, each membrane being numbered at the foot as such and such a roll. I have retained the old nomenclature, calling the bundles of membranes files, and the separate membranes rolls. The majority of the rolls are in English, but several are in Latin.

I will now proceed to say a few words on each file, taking the first two at the same time.

Files 1 and 2 comprising the reign of Elizabeth, and containing 113 rolls (sixty and fifty-three respectively), were fastened together in one unwieldy file, so I divided them where I thought there was a break in the sequence, a change occurring in the Clerk of the Peace, and a large gap in the dates. There is an indorsement to the effect that at some time or other this first part had constituted a file by itself.

The earliest enrolment was made on the 10th January, 1561, the indenture itself was executed a few months previously, viz., on the 1st September, 1560. The two files extend over the whole reign, the last entry being on the 23rd March, 1603, that is the day before the Queen's death.

I have mentioned a gap in the dates, it turned out to be a snare owing to the abominable misplacing of the membranes by someone, who long since enfiled them, paying little or no attention to their proper order and numbering them afterwards. This was not the first file brought to me, and, judging by my experience of the others, the arrangement of which is fairly correct, with an occasional slip, I thought I might trust the figures on this, the more so as they followed each other in regular sequence, and when I discovered my mistake I had gone too far to correct it.

I regret that I did not re-arrange these rolls in the first instance, but as any one who refers to the Calendar can tell at once by looking at the date of any two conveyances which is the earlier of the two, I trust that the order is not of primary consequence. It was trouble enough to hunt through the rolls for one containing the continuation of an indenture and apparently missing. I invariably found it, and there is not an imperfect enrolment on this file.

Another eccentricity of this file is that it begins again at roll 25, where eleven rolls occur inscribed only on the face containing duplicates of the entries on rolls 1 and 8 to 14, and seemingly roll 14 ought to be roll 2. I think the second series is really the original one; it is in quite a different, and, I should say, older hand.

File 3 continues the series, and, I believe, without an interruption. There is in this file a fine series of thirty-four enrolments relating to the sale of the tithes in Old Buckenham¹ to various purchasers, giving schedules of the lands from which the tithes were derived; and, did any one care to take the necessary trouble, I think a fairly perfect map of the parish might be made from the information given, showing all the fields, roads, lanes, &c., with their names as they existed in 1614.

Files 4 and 5 were one file of 177 rolls. The membranes are of a uniform size, and much narrower than any others I have met with. The earlier rolls vary considerably in the length and breadth of the membranes. File 4 slightly overlaps with file 3, so it is hard to believe that anything is missing between the two. When I first had the whole in my hands it finished at roll 169, which had a blank back, and appeared to be quite perfect, but roll 170 came to light in the cleaning, torn, and illegible in places; moreover, it finishes at the beginning of a deed, so that it is evident that one or two membranes are wanting here. On the back of roll 6 an Apprentice Deed occurs. It cannot have any business there. Moreover, what could have been the use of recording it nearly twenty-five years after it was executed? Clearly someone has blundered. I can only explain it by supposing that the original was lying about, and by accident got between two deeds handed in for registration, and the clerk (perhaps new to the work) entered it with the others. The last enrolment was made in January, 164⁹.

As one would expect from what has just been said, file 6 does not continue the sequence as it ought. The first deed was enrolled in April, 1644, giving a hiatus of three years. It consists of thirty-nine rolls ending in January, 165⁹. There is nothing in it to warrant particular mention.

File 7 commences in January, 165⁷, leaving a whole year unaccounted for. As the next year occupies five rolls, it seems reasonable to suppose that some rolls at the end of file 6 are lost. This file ends in June, 1679, showing a gap of about three years between the last two entries, and the last is incomplete.

The series virtually ends with file 7, but three rolls are evidently missing, one to complete that file; and what I have called file 8 consists of only one roll, which is No. 3. It contains two deeds enrolled Dec., 1683, and Oct., 1684, respectively. The latter is imperfect, and relates to Little Walsingham charities.

That the Act quoted was becoming obsolete is clear from the rolls themselves. The number of enrolments per annum decreases; and roll 31 in d on file 7 is a deed entered thirty-five years after the execution, and then only to show the title of the vendor in a new conveyance, the copy of which is not found.

In fact the practitioners of the day had found a means of evading the Act by a method with which anyone, who has had occasion to examine title deeds, must be thoroughly familiar; I mean the lease for a year and release. It is, moreover, a noteworthy coincidence that the date of the Statute of Frauds (29 Car. II. c. 3, i.e., 1677), almost exactly corresponds with that at which this series ceases. Seeing that it enacted that a feoffment must be in writing to be effectual, and said nothing about enrolment, it may be surmised that it made enrolment no longer necessary and rendered 27 Hen. VIII. c. 16 nugatory.

File 9 is of two rolls, temp. William and Mary, and comprises four years, from 1689—1693.

There is a roll for 1st Anne, numbered Rot. 1; I have called it file 10. It contains but one deed, which is an interesting one, showing how a woman, about to marry, created a separate estate for herself, during coverture, without the aid of a married woman's property act. We may be sure she was anxious to have it registered.

File 11 has sixteen rolls, but they are of a different class to the others, and contain the award of the Commissioners appointed for the Inclosures of the parishes of Stokesby and Oxburgh, and the remainder entirely relate to the conveyances of the estates of Papists, commanded to be enrolled by 3 Geo. c. 18, the first deed bearing the date of the following year, and the last enrolment preserved took place in January, 173 $\frac{1}{2}$.

I have not been able to arrive at any satisfactory conclusion respecting the Norfolk conveyances during the first quarter of a century, after the passing of the Act, 27 Hen. VIII. c. 16. It is said to have been evaded soon after the promulgation, but that fact will not account for their non-existence. The parties had the option of the registration at Westminster, but it does not appear altogether reasonable to suppose they resorted to a course that must have been very expensive. On the other hand, it is odd that there should now be not the slightest trace or fragment of the earliest enrolments at the Shirehall.

Until now, all the county records have been a sealed letter for the historical enquirer, not that he was unable to obtain permission to make a search, but he had needs be a keen searcher to be prepared to examine thousands of slips of parchment on the chance of one or two supplying the information required. The following calendar will only render accessible a very small proportion.

I have said something of the genealogical value of these rolls. As to their topographical, I may add that Blomefield never saw them. His mark is conspicuous by its absence at the Shirehall, and they contain matter that is an addition to his work. For example, take the first item of the calendar, and turn to Blomefield, vol. xi., p. 184, and it will be seen at once that he knew nothing about it. Better still, look on the back of R. 13, of the first file, which entry must refer to Kirstead. We find in Blomefield that Thomas Godsalve purchased a fourth part of Kirstead Miniots, 36 Hen. VIII., and that John Copledike held it about 22 Eliz. Now the calendar will show that Thomas Gawdye conveyed a fourth part of the manor to Copledike, and the roll gives us his (Gawdye's) title, viz., the purchase of the same part from Thomas Godsalve, on 11 Oct., 3 Eliz. I might give several other instances. At the same time, Blomefield, undoubtedly, saw the originals of several of the enrolled deeds.

In conclusion, I desire to express my thanks to the officials at the Shirehall, especially to Mr. H. C. Bolingbroke, the County Treasurer, for courteous help and accommodation in his office.
